ECLIPSES FOR THE YEAR 1826.

THERE will be Five Eclipses in the Year 1826: Three of the Sun and Two of the Moon, in the following order.

1st. The first will be of the Moon, May 21st, at 10 hours 52 minutes in the morning, consequently invisible.

2d. The second will be of the Sun, June 5th in the afternoon at 0 hours 50 minutes, invisible here, owing to the Moon's great South Latitude.

3d. The third will be of the Sun, October 30th, at 8 hours 58 minutes, in the afternoon, invisible.

4th. The fourth will be of the Moon, on the morning of the 14th of Nov. at 11 hours 45 minutes, consequently invisible.

5th. The fifth and last will be of the Sun, November 29th, at 7 hours 13 minutes in the morning, invisible, the centre of the Moon at Sun rising will pass 43 minutes of a degree North of the Sun's centre, leaving an interval of 10 minutes between their nearest limbs.

♀ Venus will be Morning Star until the 10th of March from that time Evening Star until the 23d of December, after that, Morning Star until the end of the Year.

The planet Venus which for the last year, made so refulgent an appearance in the heavens both as Morning and Evening Star, often appearing in full Day, will at the commencement of the Year 1826 be in that part of her orbit which is furthest from the Sun, and diminished of most part of her lustre, she will appear as Morning Star, until the 10th of March which will be the time of her superior conjunction with the Sun. She will begin to emerge from the Sun's rays about the 10th of April, and shine as Evening Star, gradually increasing in splendour as she recedes from the Sun; the time of her greatest elongation from the Sun will be the 13th day of October, she will then begin to approach the Sun, retaining her full splendour until the 10th of December, when she will have nearly immersed in the Sun's rays, and on the 23d of December, the time of her inferior conjunction will pass 3 degree North of his centre, and then resume her appearance as Morning Star.

FARMERS' CALENDAR,

From an AMERICAN ALMANACK, for the year 1826.

JANUARY.—Farmers—in these long evenings, you want the company of friends, (and the best are in your family,) of a well edited newspaper, and a book from a parish library. Furnish your children also with books that will be so interesting that they cannot refrain from reading them. Let the Farmer cease to look abroad for sources of sudden wealth—let each attend to his farm understandingly—let him know his own plan and pursue it steadily—let him do his work well and in due season—see that all is in order, and fit for what it is designed—contribute cheerfully to objects of usefulness and public improvement, regarding, with anxious care, the interests of church and schools—let him discountenance idle and vicious habits, and promote good conduct and vital piety in the circle around him by his own example—let him, in short, strive earnestly to discharge his duty to himself, his neighbours, and his God, and he cannot fail of success; but with an approving conscience, and the smiles of Heaven, he will secure to himself the rank of an honest, intelligent, and independent Farmer.

FEBRUARY. “He that will dance, must pay the piper, as Cardinal Wolsey told Oliver Cromwell when they were taking a farewell drap whiskey with Capt. Porteous, in the Edinburgh tolbooth, just before the mobocracy led him to his midnight trial and execution in the grass market. Don’t get into the merchants’ books, if you can help it.” Such was uncle Rubby’s exhortation to Jeremy Jollyman, as he saw him wending his way towards Barrabas Bookem’s variety warehouse; his calico mare curtsying under two burdens of jars, almost as numerous as those of the oil merchant in the “Forty Thieves.” “I tell thee, Jerry, short credit makes long friends, and ready pay fears no day; trust is the De’il’s invention to occasion contention; and if a law suit arise, I am quite apt to surmise, it was that deuced long credit, most surely which bred it. When pay day comes round and no cash can be found, you will be all in a pother, and call on one and another, but find, to your grief, no hope of relief from the Sheriff’s ‘fell swoop’, who will seize on thy chattels, or put thee in prison, like chicken in coop, to mourn thy sad fate, so penned up in state, as was Bonny the great, to dream of lost battles. So take my kind warning, ere I bid thee good morning, turn homeward thy mare and the better you’ll fare.” “Hah, daddy, is that you? verbum sat. Let the morrow take care of itself. Sufficient for the day is the evil thereof. I mean to live to day. Never borrow trouble.” “Alas! poor Jeremy!” sighed the old man, and departed.

Sprinkle some brine over straw or chaff and cattle will eat it very well. Salting all fresh hay, when put up, is a great addition to it, as it renders it more nourishing to cattle, and so, of course, will go further in keeping them. Good judges say, that adding eight quarts of salt to each ton of hay, will make it go as far as a ton and a quarter that has not been salted.

MARCH. “What is a man, if his chief good, and market of his time, be but to sleep and feed? a beast, no more.” “I do not know why yet I live to say, this thing’s to do; sith I have cause, and will, and strength, and means, to do't," as Bajazet told Tamerlane, when he had prepared the iron cage for him, intending to exhibit this prowling animal, among other tame ferocities, to the lovers of nature in the United States of America, whose great and little folks, at full price and half price, were running wild themselves to get sight of a caged Turk or Tartar, or the mysterious man of the iron mask, whom rumour was floating hither on board the Bastile. Don't let sleeping and feeding consume too much of your time; nor yet the hunting after wild men or wild monkeys—men tailed or untailed, Swift's men, or Monboddo's men. Neither let indecision and procrastination compel thee to say, this thing is to do, lest poverty, like Sinbad's old man of the sea, get seated astride thy shoulders, and only laugh at thy efforts to dismount her; fixing herself more firmly in her seat, when thou prancest and curvettest beneath her unmotherly goadings."

APRIL. "Look before you leap, as Pompey the great remarked to Lord Cornwallis, the evening before the battle of Azincourt when Joan of Arc came to the English camp, with a polite invitation to the officers from the French King to sup with him.—Don't sow before your ground is properly prepared," said uncle Rubby to his neighbour Hurriem Thatildo, who had as much fear of his plough's going below the surface of the ground, as his son Goslington had of his mammy's breaking the skin, in taking a splinter out of his foot.

Dress your winter grain with plaster, if it was not done at seed time. Your mowing lands too if of a dry soil, will amply repay the expense of one or two bushels of plaster to the acre—or a few of lime or leached ashes. Nurse your stock with potatoes, or carrots if you have them. As soon as the ground is bare let your sheep range on your stubble fields, if not sown with clover for mowing. Green herbage is the most natural feed for sheep. If you have no such fields, give them potatoes and carrots, (but not turnips,) as a substitute. Keep them from your mowing grounds.

Plough for spring grain. Sow all your spring grains as early as possible, with due caution against frosts. Be especially careful to catch a dry seed time, if you can. A strict attention to this part of good farming, will well pay your care, by the difference in the value of your crop. If wheat be washed in clear spring water the water being changed two or three times, and it be well rubbed and stirred about in each change of the water, the grain may be entirely cleansed from smut. Ross your old fruit trees. Set cabbage stumps and onions for seed. Sow early pease, salads, turnips, radishes, and cabbage; sage, thyme, mint, sumofsavoury; spinach, parsley, and celery. Plant potatoes in this month, if practicable. Choose a warm rich piece of ground near the house, of one, two, three, or four rods; render it rich with horse or hog manure.

MAY. "She hath as many qualities as a water-spaniel,—which is much in a bare christian. Here is the cat-log of her conditions. Imprimis, she can fetch and carry. Why, a horse can do no more; nay, a horse cannot fetch, but only carry; therefore is she better than a jade. Item, she can milk: look you, a sweet virtue in a maid with clean hands." But she hath vices. "Item, she is slow in words.—O villain, that set this down among her vices! To be slow in words, is a woman's only virtue: I pray thee, out with 't, and place it for her chief virtue.—Item, she is proud.—Out with 'hat too; it was Eve's legacy, and cannot be taken from her." "I tell thee, Habbakuk, that she will make thee a most tidy, thrifty, and quiet housewife; I doubt she will have clean hands, and a clean face, and a clean head, because these all are points of the last importance in a dairy-maid ; if she have pride, it must stimulate to order and neatness, and exertion, or it will be a most ungraceful tiara for her ; if she be slow of speech, she will be less inclined to gossiping, and the more to business, and thy ears will not be for ever deafened, and thy peace disturbed by incessant garrulity and angry outpourings, as were those of poor Socrates of yore. Thou art not wise, therefore, unless thou hasten to complete the connubial contract with the fair Judith, which promises to be the key-stone of thy life's happiness."

If you smear your seed-corn all over with tar, and sprinkle ashes or plaster on it before planting, to prevent the birds or squarrels from digging it up, you must remember that it will be necessary first to soak it enough to make it vegetate, for, otherwise, the coat of tar will keep out the moisture, and hinder the seed's sprouting. Soaking seed-corn in copperas-water just previously to planting it, is said to be highly beneficial ; as it not only hastens vegetation, but also prevents the worms destroying the young plants. An ounce of copperas may be sufficient for every quart of seed, and it ought to be steeped about twenty-four hours.

JUNE. "I cannot choose : sometimes he angers me, with telling me of the molewarp and the ant, of the dreamer Merlin and his prophecies ; and of the dragon and a finless fish, a clip-winged griffin, and a moulten raven, a couching lion, and a ramping cat, and such a deal of skinkle-skamble stuff, as puts me from my faith. I tell you what, he held me but last light, at least nine hours, in reckoning up the several demons names, that were his laqueys : I cried, umph—and well,—but mark him not a word. O, he's as tedious as is a tired horse, or railing wife ; worse than a smoky house :—I had rather live with cheese and garlic, in a windmill, far, than feed on cakes, and have him talk to me, in any summer-house in Christendom." "I cannot choose but to cross him," said Billy Busyever of Nathan Narrative ; "the sight of him affects me as much as that of the ghost did Elihu ; when I meet the long-tongued, button-holding reciter of a morning, and cannot dodge him before he begins his one thousand and one stories, alas, say I to myself, all business is knocked in the head for this day, unless I resolutely cross him and quit him." And surely this is no time for harangues in the fields, or long greetings in the market-places. If attacked by one of the magpie, gossiping tribe and no hope of relief or rescue dawn upon you through the world of wordy vapours and clouds,—cross and quit, even if, like Joseph, you should leave your garment behind you ; and let your next coat be made without either buttons or button-holes.

Besides the processes in regard to seed-corn which we mentioned in May, some persons practise soaking it in a liquid containing spirits of turpentine allowing one gill of the spirits to make a liquid sufficient for soaking one quart of seed. Others soak it in a decoction of sweet elder. Corn should not be planted deep. The roots always run to a proper depth, if the seeds be planted near the surface. Plant seed-potatoes whole.

JULY. "Virtue ? a fig ! 'tis in ourselves, that we are thus, or thus. our natures would conduct us to most preposterous conclusions. But we have reason to cool our raging motions, our carnal stings, our unbitted lusts; whereof I take this, that you call love, to be a sect or scion.” “Attend assiduously to the due and careful cultivation of both thy natural, and moral, and intellectual, gardens,” said uncle Methuselah to his neighbour Wildwing, “and suffer nettles, and henbane, and nightshade, and bobonupas, to grow in neither. Weed out of the one all poisonous and useless vegetables, and root out of the other all pestiferous and dangerous principles and passions. Let neither become steril, or worse than steril, through idleness and inattention. On the contrary, let industry, decision, patience, and perseverance, produce therein a large abundance of every thing good, wholesome, beautifying and happyfying: Let love to neighbour, and love to self, ever run in equal and parallel lines, through every scene and every incident of your life.—Love is the fulfilling of the law—Love is heaven, and heaven is Love.”

Thin out, and earth up, all your plants: frequent hoeing is both rain and manure to them, especially in dry weather, and if done early in the morning. Dress your cornhills, at the hoeings, with a handful of plaster, or live or leached ashes, if it be needed. Have no loitering while having drives. Harvest your grain early. All that is gained, perhaps, by late harvesting, is only an addition to the skin of the grain.

AUGUST. “First follow nature, and your judgment frame
By her just standard, which is still the same,
Unerring nature, still divinely bright,
One clear, unchanged, and universal light,
Life, force, and beauty, must to all impart,
At once the source, and end, and test of art,
Those rules, of old discover'd, not devis'd,
Are nature still, but nature methodiz'd:
Nature like liberty, is but restrain'd
By the same laws which first herself ordain'd.”

“Let nature, then, be thy lawgiver and guide, in all thy agricultural experiments and processes,” said uncle Zebedee Oldschool to Triptolemus Visionist. Don't plough in January, nor sow in February, nor reap in March, nor make fence in July, nor sled your winter's wood in August, nor go a hunting in June, nor set off on a hundred mile visit in May; for all this runs a little counter to Nature's instructions. Neither commence quarrels in a frolic, nor frolics in a meeting-house, nor mischiefs in the court-house, nor crimes in the jail. Begin no friendships to spite enemies, nor animosities to humour friends. Enter not on lawsuits in a passion, nor become a surety in liquor, nor lay plans in a consumption.—The clergy, who live by our sins, the medical faculty, who live by our diseases, and the law gentry, who live by our misfortunes, are wise in their generation, and manage these things better.”—“Keep your head cool; your feet dry and warm; your body open as nature would have it; and then you may bid the faculty kiss your toe, with as good a grace as the Pope himself—such nearly were the only contents of a scaled volume which the celebrated Boerhaave left as a rich legacy to posterity.”

It is better to cut grain early, because, though it will be somewhat harder to thrash, yet there will be less waste, in its shelling out, in harvesting and carting in. Plants may be watered a little, early in the morning, or at evening, if in a dry soil, and the weather become very dry. Nurse with the hoe such potatoes as are not fit to be dug. Sow turnips for winter.

SEPTEMBER. "Fye! Fye! unknit that threat'ning unkind brow, and dart not scornful glances from those eyes, to wound thy lord, thy spouse, thy friend; it blots thy beauty, as frosts bites the meads; confounds thy fame, as worldwinds shake fair buds; and in no sense is meet, or amiable. A woman moved is like a fountain troubled, muddy, ill-seeming, thick, bereft of beauty; and while it is so, none so dry or thirsty will deign to sip or touch one drop of it. Thy husband is thy lord, thy life, thy keeper, thy head, thy sovereign; one that cares for thee, and for thy maintenance; commits his body to painful labour, both by sea and land; to watch the night in storms, the day in cold, while thou lies warm at home, secure and safe; and craves no other tribute at thy hands, but love, fair looks, and true obedience;—too little payment for so great a debt. Such duty as the subject owes the state, even such, a woman oweth to her husband: and, when she's froward, peevish, sullen, sour, and not obedient to his honest will, what is she but a foul contending rebel, and graceless traitor to her loving lord? I am ashamed that women are so simple to offer war, where they should kneel for peace; or seek for rule, supremacy, and sway, when they are bound to serve, love, and obey." Such was my aunt Kate's invective pronounced against the feuds and treasons of the commonwealth of matrimony, and addressed to pouting, flouting, frowning, fretting, snapping, snarling cousin Bianca who had been some hours suffering under a severe fit of inconnubiality, because the horse and wagon had been sent to market, when she wanted them to ride off on a distant visit; and that too, after her imperial degree had gone forth in prohibition of so flagrant an usurpation of her rights.

Go to bed early, that you may rise early. Don't indulge the boys and girls too much in foppery, and flippancy, and flats; nor in endless wanderings.

OCTOBER. "Ha, Ha! what a fool Honesty is! and Trust, his sworn brother, a very simple gentleman!" soliloquized Toby the travelling trader. "I have sold all my trumpery; not a counterfeit stone, not a riband, glass, pomander, brooch, table-book, ballad, knife, tape, glove, shoe-tie, bracelet, horn-ring, to keep my pack from festing; they throng who should buy first; as if my trinkets had been hallowed, and brought a benediction to the buyer: by which means, I saw whose purse was best in picture; and what I saw, to my good use I remembered. My clown, (who wants but something to be a reasonable man,) grew so in love with the wenches' song that he would not stir his potatoes, till he had both tune and words; which so drew the rest of the herd to me, that all their other senses stuck in ears: you might have pinched a placket, it was senseless; it was nothing to ease a pocket of a purse; I would have filed keys off, that hung in chains. No hearing, no feeling, but my sir's song and admiring the nothing of it; so that in this time of lethargy, I picked and cut most of their holy-day purses; and had not the old man come in with a whoobub against his daughter and her disguised sweetheart, and scared my choughs from the chaff, I had not left a purse alive in the whole army." "Listen to him," said uncle Rubby to Phillo Frillery, "and beware of him; he has the mark of the beast in his forehead; let your only intercourse with him begin and end in noli metangere." Scarcely, however, had he ended his soliloquy, ere he was seized by the officers of justice, and brought to trial, and soon consigned to the regenerating atmosphere of the state-prison.

Look to apples, cider-making, and potato-digging. Set the little ones to picking up apples and potatoes; and, as they are your richest blessing, thus train them early to habits of industry and frugality, by which, when arrived at mature age, they may become an honor to themselves, valuable members of society, and the best hope of their country.—Clense your cider barrels well.

NOVEMBER. "Pour forth thy fervors for a healthful mind,
Obedient passions and a will resign'd;
For love, which scarce collective man can fill;
For patience, sovereign o'er transmuted ill:
For faith, that, panting for a happier seat,
Counts death kind nature's signal of retreat,
These goods for man the laws of heaven ordain,
These goods he grants, who grants the pow'r to gain;
With these, celestial wisdom calms the mind,
And makes the happiness she does not find."

Such is the constant law of nature, that in all the arts and sciences, nothing fine or excellent can be accomplished without the concurrence of several persons. How many millions of men does it not require to make a nation powerful, happy, famous or flourishing! In all this, how great does the wisdom of the Creator appear! In order that the inhabitants of our globe, and particularly that mankind might be happy, he formed such relations and connexions between all beings, that they could not subsist without each other. Experience daily teaches us, that he had our good in view. The whole world was planned for this purpose, and every part of it concurs towards the felicity of mankind. Even the things which appear to us of so little importance, that we scarce deign to look at them, all contribute to make us happy. The very insects we so much despise are useful to us. Millions of hands labour daily for us. How many animals lose their lives to support ours! and in how many other ways of which we are ignorant, may not nature be active in our favour! May it teach us to value as we ought the goodness of our merciful Father, and to be sensible of our own happiness.

Plough up, clean and deep, before the ground becomes too much frozen, such stubble or sward grounds, as you intend for indian corn next season; especially if they be such as are apt to be infested with the grub, or cut-worm.

DECEMBER. "Neighbours," said uncle Rubby, "I hope none of you have learned the old Greek's grace—

'Immortal gods, I crave no pelf;
I pray for no man, but myself:
Grant I may never prove so fond,
To trust man on his oath or bond;
Or a harlot, for her weeping;
Or a dog, that seems a sleeping:
Or a keeper with my freedom;
Or my friends, if I should need 'em.
Amen. So fall to't:
Rich men sin, and I eat root.'

For as Timon says, the gods themselves have provided that I shall have much help from you: how had you been my friends else? Why have you that charitable tithe from thousands, did you not chiefly belong to my heart?

I have told more of you to myself, than you can with modesty speak in your own behalf; and thus far I confirm you. O, you gods, think I, what need we have any friends, if we should never have need of them? They were the most needless creatures living, should we ne'er have use of them: and would most resemble sweet instruments hung up in cases, that keep their sounds to themselves. Why, I have often wished myself poorer, that I might come nearer to you. We are born to do benefits; and what better or properer can we call our own, than the riches of our friends? O, what a precious comfort 'tis, to have so many, like brothers, commanding one another's fortunes! O joy, e'en made away ere it can be born! Mine eyes cannot hold water, methinks: to forget their faults, I drink to you."

See that the summer tools and carriages, &c. be put up carefully, secure from all injurious exposure to the weather. Finish husking and threshing, if they be not already done, unless you wish to fatten the rats, mice, and squirrels. See that your fences are in good order around your mowing grounds and winter grain. Have grain ready for market. Post up your books, and be prepared to settle accounts. Be ready to meet your collector, not with sword or pistol, nor with his hand ungently on your shoulder.

AGRICULTURAL.

Mr. J. Nelson, of Mecklenburg, Virginia, has published the following cure for the rot and scab in sheep, which he has made use of with very great success:

"In the year 1806, my flock was so very indifferent, that from ninety sheep I sheared only 130 weight of wool, so sorry as to be barely fit to make clothing for young negroes. Immediately after shearing, I made use of the following mixture: Three gallons of tar, and three do. of train oil, boiled together, to which was added three pounds of roll brimstone finely powdered and stirred in. This quantity was sufficient for the above number, and was poured on with a kitchen ladle, from the top of the head along the back bone to the tail. At the next shearing (in 1807) from 78 of the same sheep, I sheared 360 pounds of very good wool, and instead of 20 to 25 sorry lambs, commonly raised from my flock, I raised 55 as fine as I ever saw. Since this application I have been frequently asked by my neighbors, where I got such fine sheep from. This remedy was taken from an old eastern paper, which I am sorry to say I have lost or mislaid. It may be necessary to add, that I have continued to make use of this application with the same success, and that when train oil is difficult to be had, any kind of grease, such as is used for plantation leather will answer."

VALUABLE EXPERIMENTS.

To show the difference between raw corn, and corn meal cooked, as feed for hogs.

Extract of a letter to the Editor of the American Farmer, dated Dec. 18, 1824.

"Some two years ago, while I was confined to the fire-side by a cold, I amused myself with several experiments, to find the increase by weight of corn, rye, shorts, &c. by boiling and cooking, with a view to economising hog food. I soon became convinced, that wonderful effects might be easily produced; and though I then made a regular record of what I did, strange to tell, I have never, till lately, attempted to put my theory into practice. I have had, since the first day of December, an actual experiment going on between raw corn, and meal made into good thick mush; two pigs, of about one hundred weight each, have been eating, seven pounds each, of raw corn, per twenty-four hours; and two others of near the same size, have had exactly seven pounds of meal made into good mush, between them. These seven pounds of meal, cooked into the state of good stiff mush, weigh from 28 to 33 pounds. I weighed my pigs accurately, at beginning, and weighed again two days since, to mark the progress. The two eating fourteen pounds of corn per day, had increased seventeen pounds in sixteen days; the two eating seven pounds of cooked meal per day, had increased twenty-four pounds in the same time. Here is a saving of one half the corn. I shall carry them on till early in January, when I shall kill them."

Directions for raising Cabbages.—Take from the stumps of old cabbages which you generally set out early in the spring, the most prominent shoots, after they have sufficiently expanded themselves, and set them out in the same manner you do your plants, and they will immediately take root and afford you a very early and luxuriant cabbage. Those who have tried this method affirm that they are much earlier and by far superior to any that can be raised from the plants. They must be broken from the stumps, and not cut off, as their small fibres greatly facilitate their taking root.

To remove Chilblains.—Take an ounce of white copperas, dissolved in a quart of water, and occasionally apply it to the part affected. This will ultimately remove the most obstinate blains. N. B. This application must be used before they break, otherwise it will do injury.
